LEGISLATURE TO BE ASKED TO BAR DARWIN THEORY

Former Local Pastor Says Legislature Will Be Asked To Bar Evolution From Public Schools At Next Session.

The Kentucky General Assembly will be asked to draft and pass a law against teaching of Darwinism in the public schools, and other similar theories of evolution, the Dr. J. W. Porter pastor of the First Baptist church, of Lexington, and former local pastor, announced in a sermon Sunday night.

A law against teaching of "infidelity" in schools in force in Tennessee has had a good effect, Dr. Porter declared.

The Lexington City Board of Education will be petitioned to discontinue the use of a textbook on zoology now in use, which, it is contended teaches the evolution theory.

"Public schools do not teach Christianity and they should not teach infidelity," Dr. Porter said. "The teaching that holds that man has come through lower forms of life to his present stage is in contradiction to Biblical doctrine."

Dr. Porter issued a formal challenge to debate anyone on the subject of evolution.

Dr. Porter declared he had made an extended study of evolution and was formerly a believer in the Darwinian theory.

EVANGELIST MAKES PLEA FOR OLD-TIME RELIGION

Revival Begun Sunday at "Little Brick Church" With Powerful Sermon By Young Evangelist.

Pleading for a return to the religion of the fathers, Rev. W. P. Davis, evangelist, at the "Little Brick Church" revival, made a splendid impression upon good sized audiences Sunday as a powerful messenger fired with zeal for the cause.

The evangelist opened his Sunday evening sermon with the startling statement that following an era of substitution in material things brought about by the World War, we have come into an era of substitution in spiritual things. He said with great emphasis that card signing had been substituted in many of our present day churches for repentance and church-membership had been substituted for religion. He very pointedly and plainly stated his creed when he stated that he believed in and preached a blood-red galvanism and a snow-white conversion.

Although very young in years, Mr. Davis speaks with authority and has a thorough knowledge of the Bible. Those who miss his sermons will miss something worth while. Services continue throughout the week at 2 and 7 p. m.

GOVERNMENT FAVORS RIVERROUTE FOR PROPOSED NEW ROAD

Former Head of Lewis County Schools and Wife Defendants in Suit For $50,000.

Several months ago Mrs. Harlan Dunbar filed suit in the Lewis Circuit Court against her father-in-law, George Dunbar, prominent Lewis county resident and former Superintendent of Schools in that county, charging alienation of her husband's affections. Shortly after the filing of this suit, it was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.

Only a few days ago practically the same suit was brought by Mrs. Harlan Dunbar in Federal Court at Covington but this time both Mr. and Mrs. George Dunbar are made defendants and the damages asked are fixed at $50,000. Because Mr. Dunbar's home is in Lewis county and that county is in the Cattellburg district, the case has been transferred to the Cattellburg district.

Hon. Allan D. Cole, of this city, has been retained by the defendants while the plaintiff is represented by Hon. M. J. Hennessey, of Maysville and Augusta.

The reappointment of Mr. Clark by Collector Dean is a most popular move, since Mr. Clark is recognized throughout the United States as one of the few experts on income tax matters.

Mr. Clark is a former newspaper man having acted for a number of years as the Enquirer's correspondent at Aberdeen, Ohio, where his father, W. H. Clark, is the owner and editor of a newspaper. Mr. Clark was made head of the income tax division of the collector's office in 1915.

Co-operative Shipping Associations Have Saved Farmers of Kentucky Counties Large Sums in Freight Bills.

Cooperative shipping associations are furnishing one of the cheapest methods whereby farmers of the state can market livestock, according to reports received from organizations in different counties by D. G. Card, marketing specialist at the College of Agriculture. Not only have the associations saved their members money in placing stock on the market but also they have had a tendency to improve the class of livestock raised in the territory covered by the associations and have developed a spirit of cooperation among farmers of the community.

Cooperative livestock shipping associations are among the most simple of co-operative marketing organizations and constitute one of the easiest methods by which farmers may undertake this form of work, according to Mr. Card.

During the past year members of the association in Ballard county have made an average saving of approximately $80 on each of the 77 cars of stock which they have shipped, a report from R. B. Wilford, manager of the association, states. The total saving of 77 cars when 16,000 pounds was taken as an average carload was more than $6,000. It cost members of the association an average of about 85 cents a hundred pounds to ship cooperatively whereas it had cost them from $1.35 to $1.75 to ship through a local buyer before the association was made.

Similar results are being obtained by an association recently organized in Union county, the cost of shipping having been reduced about 30 cents on the hundred pounds by means of the co-operative plan. This association has shipped five carloads up to the present time at a cost of from 35 to 45 cents a hundred pounds. Marketing through a local buyer cost farmers in the county from 65 to 75 cents a hundred pounds.

POOLS DECREASE MARKETING COST FOR KENTUCKY FARMERS

Only 84 Head Condemned Out of 4,574 Examined By Officials In October.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 28.—The number of tubercular cattle found among the herds of Kentucky was reduced from 3.8 per cent. to 2.27 per cent. during the last year, according to Dr. W. F. Biles, in charge of the work of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry in Kentucky. During the month of October 4,574 cattle were examined by veterinarians and out of this number 84 head were condemned. The cattle examined during the month were from 398 herds.

There may be a few counties in the state, according to Dr. Biles, where the percentage of tubercular cattle is slightly higher than the state average. These are counties where there are large herds, he said.

The Kentucky percentage was compared by Dr. Biles with that of some of the eastern states in a number of which the number of tubercular cattle found ranged 15 to 25 per cent.

OFFICER FIRES AT THIEVES ESCAPING FROM POOL ROOM

Two Youngsters Seen Fleeing From Rear of Pool Room Early Sunday evening—Patrolman Unable To Learn Identity.

At about 7:30 Sunday evening while passing the mouth of Red Skin alley on Second street, Officer James McNamee noticed two figures in the alley at the rear of the Ben Middleman pool room. He called to the parties and they dropped something and ran through the alley toward Front street.

The officer followed and fired his revolver but the fleeing thieves only put on more speed and made good their escape.

An investigation disclosed that the young men had entered the pool room through a rear window and had stolen a supply of cigars and cigarettes, the greater part of which they left strewn through the alley in their escape.

Mr. Middleman took an inventory of his stock and found that only broken packages had been taken and that the loss was not heavy. The police have no clew to the thieves although they have a very good description of the thieves who were both mere boys.

OUR POLICY:

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section as against another. And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the county as a whole.

LAND FORCE REDUCTION A POSER

The problem of reaching an agreement upon the reductions of land forces will be by far the most difficult question concerning armaments with which the conference will be confronted. France is understood to take the position that her armies can not be reduced until Germany has fulfilled all the military provisions of the Versailles Treaty, and until the menace of the Russian hordes has been removed. Germany at present has a regular army of 100,000 men, and 150,000 military police. They are all highly trained soldiers, capable of becoming non-commissioned officers in the event of a general German mobilization. It is believed by some that Germany could put an army of 5,000,000 men in the field, the nucleus of which would be the quarter of a million men now under arms.

Russia has 550,000 infantry troops under arms, and 21 divisions of cavalry averaging 4,000 men to each division. She has available 5,000,000 more men who could be put into the field if equipment were at hand. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that the German government may go to pieces, the German people either fall a prey to or join hands with the soviets, and the western frontier of France suddenly be menaced by a Slav-Teuton hordes that would constitute as great danger as confronted it in 1914. It is possible that a scheme for the reduction of armies may be worked out, but there is far more reason for maintaining large forces of men in some countries, for a time, than there is for keeping huge navies on the seas.

WE PASS

Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and one time president of the National City Bank of New York, is a pleasant gentleman and his comments on financial and economic matters always furnish entertainment in our moments of relaxation. A short time ago Mr. Vanderlip toured Japan, and came back with a most interesting account of his adventures, told in a way highly eloquent of the Japs. Recently he has been visiting in Europe, and has studied financial conditions in twelve European countries. His conclusions sound like an echo of the period of internationalism from which the country but lately emerged.

Mr. Vanderlip would establish an international "super-bank," with a capital of a billion dollars. The corporate existence of the institution would be created through the league of nations, but the bulk of the initial subscriptions would be from America. (How strangely familiar is that arrangement!) This American gold, loaned to a league of nations bank, would be turned over to foreign banks on collateral security equal to 150 per cent. of its value. The league bank would also issue circulating dollar notes, backed by a gold reserve. He frankly says, "It was not presented as an American proposition, but it is the prescription which I would recommend for the currency sick countries of Europe." If Mr. Vanderlip does not consider the proposition good from an American standpoint, just why should he, an American, advocate it?

OUR NEW COMMISSIONERS.

Mason county's new Fiscal Court will prove to be a good one. This conclusion is reached by the action of the newly elected Commissioners a few days ago when, in a get-together meeting of the old and new courts, the newly elected Commissioners agreed to let the road work proceed during good weather, the expense of this work to be paid for by the new court when it comes into office. This action displays good common sense and a desire to serve the county effectively at the right time.

In an informal discussion of county problems at this joint meeting, the newly elected Commissioners demonstrated beyond question by their common-sense view of things and their interest in learning all they could about official matters, that the county's fiscal affairs will be in safe hands for the next four years.

All three Commissioners are good business men, progressive and yet careful and greatly interested in their job.

Interest in one's job is the big thing and this alone will make our new Fiscal Court a good one.

They have a great job on their hands and need the confidence, co-operation and patience of the people.

LET IT BE SETTLED

Two of the railroad brotherhoods are as eager for a strike as they were the latter part of October. They declare that the action of the carriers in posting notices of further wage reductions is virtually a challenge to the men to strike. Well, let it come. The public is as eager now as it was six weeks ago to settle once and for all the question whether a minority of two or three per cent. of the people can inflict suffering on the rest of their fellow citizens to compel compliance with their demands. The merits of those demands do not enter into the discussion at all. Were they as free from criticism as the employees themselves claim, and were the railroads as arrogant as the brotherhoods charge, still there would be no justification for the workers resorting to a strike for the purpose of winning their cause. An agency has been created for the settlement of all disputes between the roads and their men, and the country will never tolerate an organization that proposed to set that agency aside and take the law into its own hands.

During the three months, July, August, and September, of this year, we exported to Mexico 105,000 pairs of men's shoes, 65,000 of women's and 12,000 pairs of children's, or a total of 182,000 pairs of footwear for the people of that country. That is one way of bringing about a better understanding in that benighted land.

The recent offering of 4½ and 4½ Treasury certificates was over-subscribed about four times, and allotments have been made on that basis. The incident is a striking indication of returning prosperity and renewed confidence in the Government at Washington.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, D. C. — The balance of the year will be devoted by Congress to clearing the decks for the passage of the Forney-Penrose tariff bill. That bill will occupy the attention of Congress to the exclusion of other legislative matters beginning the fore part of the new year.

A review of legislative action concerning the tariff bill is pertinent at this time. Considerable preliminary action had been taken in 1920 toward its consideration in the House. January 6th, of this year, formal hearings on the tariff question were initiated, proceeding until February 16th. Importers and manufacturers, without partiality were given audience by the Ways and Means Committee, so that in no sense could the measure be said to favor one class more than another.

June 29th the tariff bill was submitted to the House and promptly referred to the Ways and Means Committee. July 6th it was formally reported back to the House and debate began, extending to July 21, when the bill was passed by a vote of 288 to 127. The bill was a frankly protective measure carrying out the campaign promise of the Republican party for "a revision of the tariff as soon as conditions shall make it necessary for the preservation of the home market for American labor, agriculture and industry." During the previous calendar year no less than $5,300,000,000 worth of imports had entered this country.

Meanwhile, and while the bill was under debate, agriculture was threatened with a terrific amount of competition from abroad and there was an insistent demand from the agricultural interests that something be done immediately for them. They did not think the situation would wait for the final adoption of the general tariff bill. So on May 27th, the Emergency tariff bill was passed which granted protection to farm products.

July 22nd the general tariff bill was referred to the Finance Committee of the Senate, which determined, after considerable pressure had been brought to bear, to hold supplementary hearings, which commenced July 25th, and which were continued daily until Congress recessed late in August because of the absolute exhaustion of many of the members.

During this recess there was an irresistible movement all over the country to induce Congress to give priority in legislation to the tax bill, and since the agricultural interests had been taken care of by way of the emergency tariff, and imports were falling off, Congress was the more ready to bow to this opinion. So, on September 21, the tax bill moved up to displace the tariff bill, and the former was passed November 7th. The tariff bill carried something of an innovation in what is known as the "American valuation" clause, which bases ad valorem duties on the domestic selling price, and wishing to secure all the information possible on that subject, the Senate appointed a committee to undertake an exhaustive investigation of what the majority in the feasibility of the clause. There is no doubt that it will be retained in the final draft of the bill.

A few days ago the emergency tariff bill was again extended, this time until the general tariff bill becomes a law; and supplemental hearings are being held by the Senate to clarify disputed points respecting certain agricultural products. It is confidently predicted that the Fordney-Penrose tariff bill will become a law not later than the fore part of March, 1922.

EFFORTS MADE TO SAVE CHAMBLIN'S LIFE.

Portsmouth, Ohio. — It was learned Friday that relatives of Roy Chamblin, condemned murderer, have started a movement with a view to seeking a commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment. The plan formulated is to circulate petitions throughout this city and county and even in Admass county, native home of the condemned man, and present them to Governor Harry L. Davis with an appeal to extend clemency and save the self-confessed murderer from paying the extreme penalty in the electric chair. It was stated that those supporting the movement have already consulted a prominent legal firm with a view to engaging their services in the matter of preparing the petitions and presenting them to the governor.

CREEK LODGE SCHOOL; VALLEY
TEACHER CARRIES OUT PUPILS.

Valley, Ky. — The teacher and pupils at the school here Thursday experienced a feeling akin to flood tides when the water completely surrounded the school, covered the porch up to the door. One more inch of water would have put it in the room. However, the teacher, Mr. William, sent out a call for a pair of rubber boots and carried the rest of the children to the wagons and to horses, all dry shod.

CONTRIBUTION OF CHURCH TO CONFERENCE ON LIMITA-TION OF ARMAMENT.

(By DR. SIDNEY L. GULICK.)

Washington, D. C. — Chemists and physicians declare that future wars will be ever more dreadful and costly, more tragic and destructive. Economists say that bankruptcy lies ahead of the nation and of the world if the present war system is continued.

Sociologists state that unemployment will increase, that misery will grow, that civilization itself will decay and finally collapse if the mad race for armaments between great nations is indefinitely continued. Biologists declare that the human breed will degenerate in proportion as we send our best and fittest young life to the shambles for wholesale slaughter.

These positive and important declarations by unquestionable authorities convince us that ways must be found for preventing future wars. Each group of scientists makes his distinctive contribution. That contribution however, we should note is negative—Thou shalt not. They do not go far in pointing the way nor in making it a reality.

Jurists, statesmen and legislators, however, come forward. They also make their distinctive contributions. They insist that world peace can come between the nations, only as it has measurably come between individuals, by the organized action of those who are peace-loving and law-abiding.

For world-peace nations must unite to establish international law, courts of justice and boards of arbitration; and these must be supported by the moral sanctions and enforced by the united power of the co-operation nations.

These authoritative spokesmen have already devised the social and political machinery. They are saying to the nations: "This is the way, walk ye it."

The church holds in its hands the keys of life and death. Its work is to create in men and in nations and races that spirit of justice, of brotherhood, of unselfish service, of cooperation. This is the way of life for men and for nations, and the only way. This spirit must dominate our nation if the conference is to reach any large degree of success. To secure this is the distinctive contribution of the church.

The church holds in its hands the keys of life and death. Its work is to able obligations, immutable moral laws ordained of God; that their violation is sin and brings terrible disaster and if persisted in, final destruction.

It has become clear that no merely intellectual message however cogent, no appeal to the "enlightened self-interest of mankind" can establish a warring world. Men's hearts must be changed. There must come into the life of millions of men the spirit of good-will, of fair play, of justice.

Deeds of good-will and service can alone disarm suspicion and fear. Spiritual disarmament must precede physical disarmament. Not until nations stop hating and fearing and suspecting each other, not until they develop confidence in each other's good intentions can we expect any very sweeping reduction of armaments. "A sound and wide view of national interests," says Lord Bryce, "teaching peoples that they would gain more by co-operation of communities than by conflict, may do much to better those relations. But in the last resort the question is one of moral progress of the individual men who compose the communities."

The church holds in its hands the keys of life and death. Its work is to create in men and in nations and races that spirit of justice, of brotherhood, of unselfish service, of cooperation. This is the way of life for

SEE WAY DOWN EAST Week of DECEMBER 5

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — On a recent Monday night, society was virtually torn in twain. The opera and the National Horse Show opened on the same night, and while it was assumed that some would endeavor to attend both, the early arrivals in the "diamond horseshoe" as well as an equally representative throng at the same hour at the horse show would demonstrate that we are becoming a right big town and that the "four hundred" must be expanding. It was a very different horse show from that of preceding years. It has moved from the Garden at twenty-sixth street to the armory of Squadron A in the upper nineties. Also, the seating capacity of the armory is limited, with but a total of sixty boxes so that there was a great amount of promenading, while the New Yorker likes so much. The military showing by the swanking Squadron A men, who stood guard in their blue and yellow dress uniforms, made the scene quite interesting and colorful as the splendid turn out down at the Metropolitan.

Do you make a practice of accumulating overshoes at the office? Does it always clear up and render these useful articles positive burden in the evening? Cheer up! We have met the annoyance here. Let the United States mail solve the problem. Clerks in the postoffice are protesting at the number of rubbers which are promptly dispatched homeward by parcel post at the end of a fair day. Seems sensible, doesn't it?

—NY—

No telling where the practice will lead to, but down on the East side, the peddlers are selling penny packages of bird seed just like your little yellow Hop Sing consumes, except that the seed has been roasted. They call it "poor man's pop corn." Fish food would seem to be next, and somehow it might even seem appropriate in some cases.

Eugene O'Neill has scored again this time with "The Straw." Not content with one success flourishing on a arid Broadway he has dramatized a thing as ghastly as tuberculosis, put the action in a sanatorium, and laid the awful horror bare in a straight, pure, and direct way. We look for grim reality from this uncompromising writer, but never has he deflected so little from a purpose to exploit the drama of the inevitable. The play is enriched by the characters out of whose qualities the quality of the story grows. They are not new people, only more clearly seen, and for that reason thought unique. Otto Kruger and Margolo Gilmore carry the poignant roles — and very well. The play is undoubtedly one of our few authenticated American tragedies.

Not many of you will want to boast that you remember Edna Wallace Hopper in the early days of her appearance, but all of you would be proud to claim her acquaintance. That actress lady of twenty years ago fame, has astounded the town by coming back and appearing only twenty. She has lately decided it was time to lose those revealing crow's feet around the eyes, and to tighten up a few facial muscles, and to a plastic surgeon she went. Presto! They are gone and by a simple tiny incision or two behind her ears, a drawing up of the sagging muscles, which erased all the lines and removed the superfluous skin. She is no wiz girl you remember of musical comedy fame and to see her is to be glad of it.

—NY—

If you are one of those people who like to believe that sentiment is dead, I'd like to take you up Madison Avenue and show you a two hundred thousand dollar memorial to sentiment. It is the home of the late Charles Lewis Tiffany, and for twenty years, his daughter, Miss Louise Tiffany, has kept it permanently closed as the repository of all the beautiful effects which her father accumulated during his life time. It is precisely in the condition in which her parents left it — a manumit to artistic perception.

What to do with our ex vice-presidents has always been a burning issue. The problem became particularly acute in the personage of Thomas Riley Marshall. I shall always be interested in everything that Jeffersonian does or says. He has laterally appeared in an engaging foreword to a new comedy of American manners, which has official political life for its setting. He does it with characteristic tartness and inevitable humor. He is reminiscent of so many good things, but the one I have always liked best is his reply to the state convention in Indiana, when it endorsed him for president. He likened the endorsement to the small boy's estimate of his first ice cream soda. "Mom, it's just sweet wind." LUCY JEANNE PRICE.

AN EPOCHAL PROPOSAL.

that grown at home. Following a discussion of the results members of the association concluded that the use of high-class home-grown seed would give equally as good results as the use of imported seed provided proper attention was given to the care and selection of seed stock.

Members of the association consider the first year's work which they have carried on to be highly successful and by next year the hope to increase their stock to the point where they can enter the market of furnishing certified seed potatoes. This year they have been compelled to refuse orders for three carloads of certified seed because of their limited stock.

NATIONAL HEALTH EXPOSITION TO BE HELD IN FEBRUARY.

State Board of Health Making Plans For Big Exposition To Be Held February 1-9.

The National Health Exposition, comprising the greatest collection of health exhibits from all parts of the world ever before gathered together, will be held in the Jefferson County armory, in Louisville, February 1-9, 1922, according to definite dates just decided on.

This exposition, which will be the fourth of its kind ever held, will be under the direction of the United States Public Health Service, the State Board of Health, the Jefferson County Board of Health, and the Louisville Health Department.

Louisville has been resting serenely in the belief that its health was good; that the various kinds of diseases which each day take their toll are just in the natural order of things. Then it got a rude awakening when the report of the recent sanitary survey by the Women's City Club showed that eighty per cent. of the cases of sickness were preventable and with the aid of statistics, compiled by Dr. A. T. McCormack, Secretary of the State Board of Health, learned that at least a year should be added to the average Kentuckian's life — a careful living and healthful process.

One of the admirable features of the American proposals is that they are definite and certain. Being specific as to what it is proposed each nation shall do, a basis is formed for immediate discussion by all the powers interested. This will immensely hasten the proceedings and afford an opportunity for intelligent discussion in each of the countries interested as well as in the counsels of the delegations at Washington.

One use of a common expression, "The cards are on the table," is the nearest approach to "open diplomacy" the world has ever seen. It undoubtedly marks the beginning of a new era in international relationships when utter frankness will be universally observed and international interests will be openly considered with the full knowledge of the people to be affected thereby.

Thence has been for several weeks a feeling that probably not much would be accomplished by the conference on limitation of armaments. This feeling is very materially dispelled by the proposals the American delegation has submitted and by the cordial manner in which those proposals have been received.

HOME-GROWN SPUD SEED IS EQUAL TO IMPORTED STOCK.

Lexington, Ky. — By using the proper care in the selection and handling of seed stock potato growers in Jefferson county as well as in other sections of Kentucky can grow seed for export or at least maintain their stock at a standard as high as that maintained by growers in northern states, according to conclusions reached by members of the Jefferson County Certified Seed Potato Growers' Association who cooperated with the extension division of the College of Agriculture in conducting comparative tests with high-class home-grown and Minnesota-grown seed. Results of the first year's demonstrations were discussed at a recent meeting of the association and while direct comparison between the two types of seed was not possible in all cases because of the slight difference in planting time and soil, sufficient data was obtained to show those who cooperated the possibilities of high-class seed from their own county.

In 16 cases where fair comparisons could be made, three men reported a slight superiority of Jefferson-county-grown seed over the imported stock, eight men could report no difference and five men reported a slight advantage of the Northern-grown seed over to have exhibits in Louisville exposition.

Invitations also are being sent to the Indiana State Board of Health and to organizations in neighboring states asking them to participate.

CORN AND SOY BEANS ARE GOOD PRODUCERS OF PORK.

Hogging off corn and soy beans is a means of rapid and economical pork production, according to results being obtained by C. T. Jull, a Marion county farmer who is cooperating with County Agent H. J. Childress and the extension division of the College of Agriculture in conducting a demonstration to show the value of this method. Five representative animals in a group which is being used to hog off a field of corn and soybeans gained 218 pounds or 43 pounds each during three weeks and three days of the demonstration. They made a total daily gain of 9.9 pounds or almost two pounds each day during the trial. Some of them gained more than two pounds a day during three weeks and three days, according to results of the experiment.

Speculation in industrial firms is spreading so rapidly in Berlin that the Stock Exchange there is closed two days a week to enable clerks to cope with the orders.

WORK THAT TELLS

Plenty of It Has Been Done Right Here In Maysville.

To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate its work. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Maysville. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now give confirmed testimony—declare the results have lasted. How can any Maysville sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

Mrs. W. A. Schatzmann, 605 East Second street, Maysville, gave the following statement November 15, 1918: "From the benefit I have derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills I have every reason to recommend them to anyone. Whenever my kidneys have been irregular in action or I have suffered with a weakness or lameness through the small of my back I have used a box or so of Doan's and they have always proven sufficient to cure the complaint quickly."

On November 22, 1920, Mrs. Schatzmann said: "Doan's Kidney Pills certainly do all that is claimed for them. I recommend them again as I did before when I publicly endorsed them in 1918. Doan's have made a lasting cure for me."

Price 60 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills — the same that Mrs. Schatzmann had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mrs. Buffalo, N. Y.

THE SLOUCHY MAN NEEDS A LIFT

Has Clogged Blood and Should Take Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

The man who walks with a slouch usually has a heavy, dull expression on his face. The eyelids droop in a lazy, languid way and he goes around feeling dead tired most of the time. Bad blood, all clogged up with poisons from the system, makes a man feel that way.

That man with bad blood has let himself get in a rundown condition. He has overdone somehow, either physically by straining, trying to do too much, or mentally, by worrying, doing without sufficient sleep. He needs new blood. Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken in regular doses every day is just the right blood builder. It drives off all the poisons. It makes blood, rich and red. When the blood gets back to normal, the color improves and the eyes brighten. It braces a man up.

Druggists sell it in liquid or convenient tablet form. The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on each package.—Advertisement.

REMUS WAIVES AN EXAMINATION; GOES TO THE GRAND JURY

Cincinnati Attorney Arrested in Connection With Alleged "Whisky Ring" Surprises Officials By Waiving.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 28.—Hearing of charges against George Remus attorney, Eighth street and Hermosa avenue, Price Hill, scheduled for Monday, before Thomas M. Gregory, U. S. commissioner, was waived by James N. Linton, attorney for Remus.

Gregory referred the case of Remus and his five associates to the April grand jury. The defendants were arrested four weeks ago on warrants charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Co-defendants are Remus' brother-in-law, Harry F. Brown, said to be president of Squibb Distilling Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., George C. Conners, president of Edgewood Distilling Co.; Clarence Bell, horse dealer, 1036 Marshall avenue; John Gehrum, chauffeur, Rural Route No. 8, Cincinnati, and Ernest Brady, railroad switchman, Covington.

Arrests followed probe by James R. Clark, U. S. district attorney, into reported transactions of a so-called "whisky ring" said to have been manipulated by an unidentified man referred to by federal agents as "the king of bottleggers."

Clark said he was ready to lay the government's cards on the table Monday.

It had been expected Remus and his counsel would seek to disprove the charges and terminate the case at the preliminary skirmish.

The government summoned as witnesses Bert Morgan, Indiana prohibition director; Ernest G. Diehl, former Cincinnati distiller, 10 dry agents and persons identified with liquor transactions.

Col. Wm. H. Thomas, of Burtonville, was in Maysville Monday shaking hands with his many friends and, as usual, boosting the Old Settlers Reunion Association.

Dr. J. J. Dickey, of Flemingsburg, was shaking hands with his many friends here Monday.

City Clerk R. B. Adair is at home after a business trip to Washington City and New York.

The City Mission had one of its biggest days Sunday, the occasion being the first day in their new and more commodious quarters in the Central Presbyterian church building. The attendance above shows how interested Maysville is in this worthy institution.

Many workers from the different churches were present and gave talks during the service. With such a fine place to meet this school should take its place as one of the leading schools of the city.

TO URGE NEW STATE LAW.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 28.—In his recommendation to the General Assembly, Governor Morrow will suggest changes in the child desertion law which were called to his attention by Judge Nanson, police judge of Covington. Judge Nanson suggested that the law should be amended to include men who desert their wives who are about to become mothers. The need for this change in the law, Judge Nanson said, is very great knowing as he does of fifteen women in Covington about to become mothers who have been deserted by their husbands.

THREE KILLED AND SIXTY INJURED IN BIG THEATER FIRE

New Haven Theater Burned Sunday Evening—Many Injured in the Stampede—Many Yale Students in Attendance.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 28.—The smoldering ruins of the Rialto Theater here were being dug up today in a hunt for possible victims of a fire last night which caused at least three known deaths.

Others are believed to have perished in the fire. Their bodies are thought to be buried in the smoking debris.

More than 60 persons were injured in a wild flight to reach the exits or seriously burned by the flames which leaped through the playhouse while 600 persons were watching a motion picture production.

The known dead were:

Timothy J. Hanlon, New Haven.

An elderly woman, unidentified.

A young man, unidentified.

Stage draperies were ignited by an incense pot and in a few seconds the entire theater was a mass of flames.

Panic prevailed. Those trapped in the blazing theater dashed to the exits. Terror was added to the audience when a short circuit immediately after the discovery of the flames threw the house into darkness.

A general fire alarm was turned in and every available physician and ambulance rushed to the scene.

Men and women fought their way to fire escapes, only to be driven back into the building by smoke billowing up from below. Many of those saved had the clothes scorched from their bodies.

A coroner's inquest was to be held today.

A pall of gloom was cast over New Haven and the campus of Yale University by the tragedy.

Crowds gathered as near the ruins as police would permit to watch the grim work of searching the charred debris for the bodies of additional victims.

Hundreds of persons telephoned or visited hospitals to inquire about those who were carried there after escaping from the theater.

Those who got out with whole skins were scarcely able to tell coherent stories, due to the excitement, which left the affair confused in their memories.

Their impressions were of a puff of fire, screams, a man's voice yelling, "Fire! Fire!" and panic flight for exits.

COUNCIL MUST GET TOGETHER THIS WEEK.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The third week of the Arms Conference, opening today, is virtually certain to bring a showdown between the United States and Japan on limitation of naval armament.

With naval authorities of the two countries deadlocked on reduction of capital ship tonnage, the Advisory Committee of naval experts was to meet again today in an effort to reach an agreement.

SHOWDOWN EXPECTED DURING THIS WEEK.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The third week of the Arms Conference, opening today, is virtually certain to bring a showdown between the United States and Japan on limitation of naval armament.
